

Hello friend!

My name is Sergey. I am software engineer.

I've been writing computer programs with passion for half of my life. I wrote a lot of software and fix thousands of bugs. And I am still engineer writing code almost every day.

I am small fish like those engineers who working hard and dedication driven to get useful things done. This makes me having mindset to solve problems pragmatically and proactively.

I love working on complex projects with positive and smart people around me.

I've been being involved in challenging projects ranging from

- hardware abstraction layers
- cross-compilers
- report generators
- distributed systems

When working on a particular project I care about finding efficient and simple solutions. I care about making friendly interfaces that are easy to use correctly and hard to use incorrectly.

I'm currently happily employed by GrapeCity Inc and just keep going.
